Commissioned Artwork: True Heart Design

The Story of Water and Community: Our New Artwork

Yamatji Water recently commissioned Yamatji artist, Delphine Schwarze of True Heart Designs, to create a unique artwork that represents the company and the waterways across Yamatji country. Delphine's painting beautifully captures the deep connection between the water and the community. We are thrilled to feature this stunning artwork in our branding as our business continues to grow, and it is currently on display in our Perth office.

Story Details

This painting captures the many waterways on Yamatji Land.

The use of yarnning circles represents a meeting place where we learn from our elders; pass down knowledge and traditions. It's where we yarn, learn, share tucker and have a laugh, but most importantly it's where we connect with the mob.

Overall, this painting highlights the importance of our waterways, supporting community needs, protecting land and sourcing valuable knowledge passed down from generations that walked before us.

Yamatji Water Projects and Commercial Update

Water Study

The commercial and technical components of the Yamatji Nation Integrated Water Study are now being finalised. Moving forward our focus will be on understanding the impacts of water on culturally significant sites within Yamatji Country.

As part of this process, we are planning site visits in the next couple of months to meet with the Elders and knowledge holders to understand the importance of water to sustaining culturally significant sites and their concerns about ongoing impacts.

Water Monitoring

The Yamatji Water Monitoring team continues to provide water monitoring services and is seeking a technical lead to be based in Geraldton with interviews currently underway.

Commercial Engagements

Yamatji Water is in commercial discussions with a number of proponents for both shorter term and longer-term water sales contracts and has recently been engaged for a water source investigation for a green energy project and water licencing review by a local agricultural/pastoral company.

Yamatji Water has provided advice and preliminary costings to Yamatji Fresh on the treatment of local groundwater for water to enable greenhouse expansion.
